Alec Wasser is a New York University student working toward a bachelor's degree in real estate. Prior to enrolling in the school in 2017, Alec Wasser held a summer internship role with New Jersey-based Mack-Cali, where he primarily worked in the property management department and learned how to take care of buildings and conduct tours of properties for prospective buyers and tenants. He previously studied business management at Marymount Manhattan College and economics and mathematics at Bucknell University. Following his freshman year, he completed a summer internship with SunRay Solar, where he was responsible for analyzing electricity bills and assisting with marketing materials and website development.

Beyond his education pursuits, Alec Wasser is a passionate community volunteer who has lent his support to causes benefiting children since 2007. He most recently volunteered for three years with HOUR Children and previously helped organize the annual fundraiser for STEPS to End Family Violence. Mr. Wasser served as a member of the benefit committee for Edwin Gould Services for Children from 2007 to 2014.
