Zoe Reardon maintains a range of interests that extend from theater and photography to horseback riding and philanthropy. In pursuit of a bachelor's degree in world languages and business at Southern Methodist University (SMU), she is also a peer academic leader. In addition, Zoe Reardon is a member of the Alpha Lambda Delta honor society.

Before enrolling at SMU, Ms. Reardon spent two months as a drama instructor for The Alliance Theater camp in Atlanta, Georgia. In this capacity, she taught basic theater skills to young children and was promoted to team manager after six weeks at the camp.

Before this, Ms. Reardon graduated from Atlanta International School's international baccalaureate diploma program. At the school, she received a scholarship for a three-week mission trip to Nepal. This was Ms. Reardon's second mission trip; the first was to General Cepeda, Mexico, where she helped provide physical therapy to underserved children.

For several years during this time, Ms. Reardon was involved in horseback riding. She has won numerous first-, second-, and third-place ribbons at regional competitions. She is the daughter of an artist and nurtures her own creative interests as a photographer.
