Transitioning Forward Founder Allen Fitzsimmons

Massachusetts-based entrepreneur Allen Fitzsimmons is the founder and CEO of Transitioning Forward. He provides a full range of assistance to individuals looking to restructure their assets when moving, managing estates, or downsizing. Allen Fitzsimmons schedules initial consultations with potential clients and presents a list of available services and a plan of action. He then leads a team of logistics professionals in developing an inventory of items to market and sell.

In addition to his responsibilities at Transitioning Forward, Mr. Fitzsimmons invests in real estate. He also recently accepted a position as the operations director of a New Jersey brewery, where he guides financial decision making.

Allen Fitzsimmons strives to maintain an active lifestyle in his leisure time by cycling and hiking. While earning a BA in economics and political science at the University of Rochester, he competed on the tennis team. He has continued to develop his skills as both a player and a coach, and he holds level-two certification as an instructor with the United States Professional Tennis Association.
