An engaged member of the Jewish community in Lakewood, New Jersey, Avraham Joseph supports a variety of faith-based organizations. Mr. Joseph attended the Lakewood-based higher education institution Beth Medrash Govoha, at which he pursued Talmudic studies. Since attending, he has supported not only his alma mater, but also Yeshiva Meon Hatorah, where he serves as a board member, assisting the school using his business experience. Avraham Joseph also supports Chai Lifeline, an international organization that through community service, events, and crisis interventions improves the lives of families with children who have major pediatric illnesses.

Outside of his efforts in the community, Avraham Joseph practices multiple martial arts, including Tae Kwon Do and Krav Maga, and collects rare coins and stamps. Professional sports also catch his interests during his off time, and he primarily supports teams from Cleveland, Ohio, such as the Cavaliers and the Indians, though he is also a fan of the Chicago Bears.
