

Raj Bains (Washington)

Raj Bains Brings Professionalism and Compassion to Family Law

Centrally located in Federal Way, Washington, between the courts in Pierce and King counties, Raj Bains' law firm addresses the complexities of family law. Although the company is in one corner of the state, Raj Bains provides clients from around Washington and elsewhere with high-quality family law service.

Over the course of 25 years, Bains has honed his knowledge of the intricacies of family law. He understands that this branch of the law deals not only with evidence and logic but also with basic human emotions. His compassionate approach leads clients toward solutions in a cost-effective manner. In addition to divorce cases, his experience covers relocation, separation, domestic violence, and custody issues.

Many clients testify to his and his staff's courtesy and individual attention. Reflecting his values, Bains performs pro bono work for clients who cannot afford legal representation. Recognizing his community involvement, the National Association of Legal Secretaries honored him as Volunteer of the Year in 2011.
