A financial services professional experienced with both retail and commercial clients, Teresa Bailey-Weirich maintains a proven track record in asset management, project management, and strategic and market planning. Prior to assuming her current responsibilities as a director of market planning for a prominent American bank, Teresa Bailey-Weirich served as a director of relationship management with Key Bank and as a business leader and market planner with Wachovia Bank. Her background also includes senior positions with JP Morgan Chase and PM Realty Group.

An accomplished writer as well, Teresa Bailey-Weirich has authored an article published in the Austin-American Statesman and coauthored sections of the book Fundamentals of Facilities Management, which was published by the Building Owners and Managers Institute. She is currently working on a nonfiction book based on the correspondence between her World War II submariner uncle and his wife. Ms. Bailey-Weirich plans to donate all proceeds from this book to organizations that fund scholarships for those who have served in the Navy.
