Email: N/A

A doctor of chiropractic, Richard Rosen practices through Downtown Physical Medicine & Rehabilitation, a private practice operating in New York City. Providing a wide range of treatment options, the practice offers medical care, massage therapy, and acupuncture. Before accepting his present position, Richard Rosen worked as a chiropractor for The Killers, a rock band, and for the New York City Marathon. His professional background also includes a period with Avenue Physical Medicine, where he performed ischemic compression and electrical stimulation.

Before building his career, Richard Rosen studied at the University of Bridgeport College of Chiropractic, from which he earned his doctor of chiropractic. While studying, he served as president of his class. Earlier, he earned his bachelor of arts in communications and culture from Indiana University in Bloomington, Indiana, where he also minored in business.

When not helping his patients, Mr. Rosen enjoys traveling to far off regions in Africa, South America, and East Asia. To stay active, he pursues outdoor sports, like golf as a member of the Preakness Hills Country Club.
