Raphael Toledano has had a long and successful career in real estate. Despite not having any money or knowledge, he continued working hard to achieve his goals. He was able to break through all barriers by willpower.

Raphael found success working for Weissman Real Estate. This company only focused on residential rentals and sales, and he was expecting nothing to come during the first year. However, things went differently than expected- he became really successful in his work there.

While Raphael was the lone driver for his 'business' within Weissman, he nevertheless chose to stay an extra year and share any commissions he received with the firm. This cost amounted to many hundreds of thousands of dollars, as a simple appreciation gift from him to Mark Weissman who had given him the opportunity.

From the modest beginning, one can argue that success breeds success. From the proceeds of his work with partners and solo-deals, he has been able to turn these into larger deals as well as invest in properties valued at $250 million+.

Raphael Toledano is proud to sponsor the East Village Food Pantry and Homeless Shelter, as well as Project Extreme. Through Project Extreme he helps many teens who are in need.
