Growing up the daughter of a rural veterinarian in South Georgia, Dr. Turner was impressed by what she describes as the "powerful and healing connection between animals and people." She has achieved great clinical success by utilizing this connection in her private practice.

In addition to treating patients directly as an attending psychiatrist, Dr. Susan Turner has instructed medical students as a professor, lecturer, preceptor, and clinical supervisor. She also co-authored a chapter titled "Hospital Treatment of Depression and Mania" in the 2009 medical textbook Principles of Inpatient Psychiatry. Dr. Turner holds active membership in the American Psychiatric Association and supports the global initiatives of Doctors Without Borders.
